At Dwell, we're staging a minor revolution. We think that it's possible to live in a house or apartment by a bold modern architect, to own furniture and products that are exceptionally well designed, and still be a regular human being. We think that good design is an integral part of real life. And that real life has been conspicuous by its absence in most design and architecture magazines. "Losing Sleep analyzes the messages parents receive about infant sleep, including how race, class, and gender shape our understanding of personal responsibility, risk, and safety"-- There have always been homeless people in the United States, but their plight has only recently stirred widespread public reaction and concern. Part of this new recognition stems from the problem's prevalence: the number of homeless individuals, while hard to pin down exactly, is rising. In light of this, Congress asked the Institute of Medicine to find out whether existing health care programs were ignoring the homeless or delivering care to them inefficiently. This book is the report prepared by a committee of experts who examined these problems through visits to city slums and impoverished rural areas, and through an analysis of papers written by leading scholars in the field. This book addresses the need for a more democratic architecture for the European welfare state by promoting citizen participation, the third sector and co-production of welfare services. Fearful of what the future might look like with so many world powers refusing to acknowledge the issues at hand? Solutions for a Wounded Planet has the answers. With a comprehensive look at both problems and solutions, Kingham details the present condition of the air, water, and land in our world, describes how human activity has been designed to waste the environment, and then shares actions that can be taken at multiple levels (family, community, municipal, regional, provincial, national, and international) to move towards a more sustainable future. If you want to change the world, start off by making your bed. On May 17, 2014, Admiral William H. McRaven addressed the graduating class of the University of Texas at Austin on their Commencement day. Taking inspiration from the university's slogan, "What starts here changes the world," he shared the ten principles he learned during Navy Seal training that helped him overcome challenges not only in his training and long Naval career, but also throughout his life; and he explained how anyone can use these basic lessons to change themselves-and the world-for the better . . .

- Begin each day with a simple task
- Help one another you through life
- Respect everyone
- Know that your life won't be fair
- That you will fail often
- Take risks
- Step-up when times are tough
- Face-down the bullies
- Lift-up the downtrodden
- And never ever give up

Do these things and we will live in a far better world than the one before it. Admiral McRaven's original speech went viral with over 10 million views. Building on the core tenets laid out in his speech, McRaven now recounts tales from his own life and from those of people he encountered during his military service who dealt with hardship and made tough decisions with determination, compassion, honour, and courage.

_____ Told with great humility and optimism, this timeless book provides simple and universal wisdom, practical advice, and words of encouragement that will inspire readers to achieve more, even in life's darkest moments. When people think of hiring an interior decorator to help them design a house, an apartment, or just a room, they often have stars in their eyes. This is the opportunity to live out their dreams-maybe not Architectural Digest dreams, but at least House Beautiful, Country Living, or House & Garden. Then they spend a lot of time and money, admire their gorgeous home for a week or two, then realize that the one thing they should have considered was making the place . . . slob proof. In Slob Proof! Deborah Weiner passes on to readers real-life home decorating solutions that were previously available only to her clients at Designing Solutions in Silver Spring, Maryland-the secrets her husband and two sons taught her through years of sad experience. When you live with 'slobs'-basically, when you really live in your home, without designating off-limits rooms and untouchable furniture-you need to choose sofas and tables, carpets and tiling, curtains and blinds, and every other element you can think of that can stand the wear and tear of real life and still look great. In Slob Proof! readers will find so much advice:

- Decorate for the way you really live-not the way you'd like to live-and spend money now on pieces that wear and clean well.
- Lifestyle comes first-toys may never be put away, clothes may always be thrown on the bedroom floor, and feet won't be wiped, so dirt and mud is probably going to be tracked in every day. Plan ahead so these things won't ruin your home!
- If you've got kids or a black Lab, white upholstery is not an option-and beige carpeting is on the endangered list, too.
- If you think your family belongs in an institution, get institutional carpet!
- Colour is your friend-you can use it to camouflage everyday life. And good lighting is a close second-it brings colour to life. Got a sloppy spouse who loves to eat late-night snacks while reclining on the living room sofa? Do your kids use your once-gleaming hardwood floors for indoor hockey practice while you're at work? Do your beds double as trampolines? Let Deborah Weiner take you by the hand, from room to room of your real-life house, filled with comfortable, functional furnishings that will hold up to the way you really live-and we're not talking about plastic covers here! This interdisciplinary Handbook combines both mainstream and heterodox economics to assess the nature, scope and importance of leisure activities. Surprisingly, the field of leisure economics is not, thus far, a particularly integrated or coherent one. In this Handbook a wide ranging body of international scholars get to grips with the core issues, taking in the traditional income/leisure choice model of textbook microeconomics and Becker's allocation of time model along the way. They expertly apply economics to some usually neglected topics, such as boredom and sleeping, work-life balance, dating, tourism, health and fitness, sport, video games, social networking, music festivals and sex. Contributions from further afield by Veblen, Sctivosky and Bourdieu also feature prominently. Applying a mix of both theoretical and empirical data, undergraduate students in modules on sport/leisure economics as well as sport/leisure management will find this important resource invaluable. We sleep half of our life. Some feel like losing half others is willing to offer the other half to get a good sleep. Sleep is useful, we all need time to reset our brain, remove the pollution of unwanted memories, worrisome details, clean the neural system from leftovers of the last working day, and most of all to make a fresh start on every new day. In all countries of the world, scientists are busy with the secrets of sleep. They work in their own box. In this book, we get out of the narrow science boxes to learn and understand the reasons for sleep, what to do if we have sleep problems, and if we have how to solve them. Sleep is often connected with rituals. When we get problems with our sleep patterns and reconsider the rituals, we become aware of the importance of sleep. Normally we take our rest for granted but when deprived of our nightly escape to the dream world we become cranky, moody, and lose concentration. Sleep disorder is life-threatening. The danger of loss of focus, the impossibility of concentration, and an increasing lack of awareness become a danger to oneself. Most accidents on the road are due to sleep disorders, road signs are placed to warn drivers to stop every 2 hours to rest at least 15 minutes. Pills, also called barbiturates, hypnotics, or just drugs, seems harmless. We live in a fast time in need of actions and even faster results. The demand and supply chain is strong here. Sleep disorder patients demand the supply of pills. In each medicine box messages to the user are included: do not use this product longer than 4 to 6 weeks. Some read these lines only after many years of use. In this book we mention the danger of (over) medication, we offer natural solutions and tips on "DIY = do it yourself". We have no borders and no limitations, everything that works is shown no matter cultural or moral background. You want to sleep, and we help you do so. Sleep disorders have become a major problem for every society. When working as a therapist (from 1979 till today) I encountered these disorders with most incoming cases. A short preliminary study in Asia showed the astonishing number of 500 million users of sleep medication drugs. Society is increasing the pressure on all of us. It seems that our lifestyle, costs, and income are all under pressure and we worry more than ever before. The daily pressure of survival makes us lose one of the most important features of relaxation: our sleep. Why do I like to assist a person with a sleep disorder? My reason is simple, I think sleep is a major part of our life and we do need to sleep to function well. With good sleep, we can make the best of our life. After a few good nights, you feel like you can handle the world. Sleeping is important to get old in a healthy way. Your life is between 1/3 in your bed and you want to do this in the most pleasant way. From the green-thumbed optimist who views their garden as a calming getaway to those that see backyard life as more of a struggle against weeds and pests, almost all gardeners will meet a creature or two who will drive them to despair. This book demonstrates how to successfully manage and lead healthcare institutions by employing the logic of business model innovation to gain competitive advantages. Since clerk-like routines in professional organizations tend to overlook patient and service-centered healthcare solutions, it challenges the view that competition and collaboration in the healthcare sector should not only incorporate single-end services, therapies or diagnosis related groups.

Moreover, the authors focus on holistic business models, which place greater emphasis on customer needs and put customers and patients first. The holistic business models approach addresses topics such as business operations, competitiveness, strategic business objectives, opportunities and threats, critical success factors and key performance indicators. The contributions cover various aspects of service business innovation such as reconfiguring the hospital business model in healthcare delivery, essential characteristics of service business model innovation in healthcare, guided business modeling and analysis for business professionals, patient-driven service delivery models in healthcare, and continuous and co-creative business model creation. All of the contributions introduce business models and strategies, process innovations, and toolkits that can be applied at the managerial level, ensuring the book will be of interest to healthcare professionals, hospital managers and consultants, as well as scholars, whose focus is on improving value-generating and competitive business architectures in the healthcare sector.
