Visitors Sep 04 2021 Suppose you could communicate with a visitor who was not from this place, time-space or dimension? What would you want to ask them? The answers probably lie in what our own response would be if we were them. This book is based on a collection of interviews I have had with a few individuals who may have actually h an experience. The idea is that if enough of us are ready to ask the questions and gain the answers, then our collective knowledge and understanding of the "multiverse" about us can only continue to be enhanced. Sometimes the results that you will read here are similar; often they are diametrically opposed to each other. An open but highly skeptical attitude is extremely necessary if you are going to sift through the data that is presented in this book. The intent is that we peak your curiosity to learn more about "visitors." In this way, we may be better informed and prepared, and thus have a better sort of coherent shape to deal with their arrival. If you read this book, you must be well prepared to choose for yourself what you will or will not believe.

Questions Are the Answer 12 2022 2018 Nautilus Book Awards Silver Winner What if you could unlock a better answer to your most vexing problem—in your workplace, community, or home life—just by changing the question? Creative problem-solvers and they will often tell you, the key to their success is asking a different question. Take Sterling, the social entrepreneur who created GoldieBlox. The idea came when a friend complained about too few toys in engineering and Sterling wondered aloud: "why are all the great building toys made for boys?" Or consider Nobel laureate Richard Thaler, who asked: "would it change economic theory if we stopped pretending people were rational?" Or listen to Jeff Bezos whose relentless approach to problem solving has fueled Amazon's exponential growth: "Often the right question is key to getting the right answer." Great questions like these have a catalytic quality—that is, they dissolve barriers to creative thinking and channel the pursuit of solutions into new, accelerated pathways. Often, the moment they are voiced, they have the paradoxical effect of being utterly surprising yet instantly obvious. For innovation and leadership guru Hal Gregersen, the power of questions has always been clear—but it took some years for the right question to hit him: If so much depends on fresh questions, shouldn't we know more about how to arrive at the right question? He sent him on a research quest ultimately including over two hundred interviews with creative thinkers. Questions and Answers delivers the insights Gregersen gained about the conditions that give rise to catalytic questions—and breakthrough insights—and how anyone can create them.

Questions Without Answers Nov 01 2021 This major work presents a remarkable sequence of photo-stories from pioneering photo agency VII, documenting world history as we have experienced it since the end of the Cold War. Extraordinarily talented photographers who make up this agency work at the cutting edge of digital photojournalism, committed to recording social and cultural change as it happens around the world. Questions Without Answers is an ambitious book featuring a strikingly broad selection of photo stories. Photos documenting Barack Obama giving the state of the union address on Afghanistan to American troops sit alongside a collection of portraits featuring famous cultural figures such as Bowie and Bernardo Bertolucci. We move from an exploration of the spread and impact of AIDS in Asia to displacement from the current economic crisis and its effect on those working in finance. The crucial work done by VII in documenting conflict - environmental, social and political, both violent and non-violent - is also represented, including stories of war in Iraq, the crisis in Darfur and the terrible events of 9/11. With an introduction by the eminent David Byrd, Fair's editor of creative development and the former director of photography of Life magazine, this book is an important moving and compelling record of the world we live in.
